VOL. 4. NO. 288 MONESSEN, PA., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1906. SIX CENTS THE WEEK

SCHUCK WAS KNOCKED OUT.

Final Figures Make Many Surprises as a Result of Last Saturday's Vote.

As a result of Saturday's primaries, here was lively times at Greensburg for day or two succeeding, and now comes e aftermath of it all, which is being lt all over the county.

First indications failed to hold good, d results seem to be somewhat turned n d in the final count.

George F. Huff, while being a victor nsonally, carried with him all who d been allied closely and truly to and ith him in the fight, and as a result, dward E. Robbin's who opposed Huff the congressional fight, and his fol wers, are up in arms, a bitter feeling isting.

The greatest surprise, in this section at st, seems to be the defeat of C. L. back for assembly, as on first indica ns he was thought a winner. How er, fate is uncertain, and we are all bject to disappointments, and must be ntent to take the bitter with the eet.

The vote cast in the county, accord to the report of the tabulating clerks, as follows:

A large new show window is being placed in the dry goods store of Charles Potti, in the Rinehart building, Sixth street, which will add materially to the appearance and comfort, as it will give considerable more light in the store room which is much needed.

Two Good Sales.

Mr. E. Jeffries, of the Monessen Savings & Trust company, yesterday sold to Louis Raden, of McKeesport, a five room dwelling between First and Second streets on Donner avenue, consideration, $2,500. Mr. Jeffries also sold to Williard Elkins, a lot at corner of Fourth and Reed for $1,500.

An Old Official Dead.

Robt. A. Hope, former protnonotary of this county, is dead near Irwin, aged 76 years. Mr. Hope was born near McKeesport, December 1st, 1829. He was for many years superintendent of the Penn Gas Coal company's mines at Penn station, afterward holding similar positions with the Roaring Run Coal company, of Saltsburg, and the United Coal and Coke company near Greensburg. Mr Hope has been a resident of Greensburg for almost 25 years. He is survived by his wife and five children, among them being Elmer E. Hope, prominent with the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad company.

HOTEL IS IN NEW HANDS.

Lehman & Matthews, of Greensburg Succeeds Ed Keenan as Proprietors of Monongahela.

Lehman and Matthews, the new proprietors of Hotel Monongahela, corner Donner avenue and Fifth street, are getting along nicely and while the location is new, the new men are old hands at hotel work, and drop into the harness like well broken horses in the hills.

The new proprietors S. B Lehman and E. C. Matthews took possession June 1, the license having been transferred to them from Mr Ed Keenan on that date.

Mr. Lehman the senior partner has been in the hotel business all his life, having been born and raised at Hindman, Bedford county, where for years he operated the old Union Hotel. For fourteen years he owned and was landlord of Hotel Lehman, at County Home Junction, South Greensburg, which he recently sold to E. J. Ashcraft, of South Fork.

Mr. Matthews, who is a son-in-law of Mr. Lehman, has been associated with the latter in business more than a year, he having been a mill roller all his life, workin in Pittsburg and Greensburg mills and is well known and liked among mill men generally.

Mr. Keenan the retiring proprietor has not made his future plans known, he and his family for a time being guests of Mr and Mrs George Stevens.

The excellent reputation of Hotel Monongahela, heretofore maintained by Ed Keenan, as he is familliarly known, will be fully observed by the new management, we can predict, in all confidence and also feel justified in assuring the public that improvements will be made wherever possible, looking toward the comfort and accommodation of the traveling public and patrons of this old and, popular hostelry.

Messrs. Lehman and Matthews being both practical hotel men will make every effort to give the town of Monessen and the people a first class, up-to-the-minute hotel, and with this assurance, we commend them, with a hope that they be given a liberal share of public patronage, of which they are worthy and entirely deserving.

BORO NEEDS MORE SEWERS

A System on the Hill Would Protect the Business Section of the Town.

Street Commissioner John Irwin and his corps of helpers have been kept busy this week taking care of the dirt washed from the hill district by the heavy rains.

Sunday evening, a week ago, a cloud burst brought down floods of water and tons of debris, Donner avenue being filled above the curbs and street car traffic being held up for hours. Other hard showers intervened, with a drencher last night and another this morning, making lots of work for teams and men cleaning up and hauling off mud and rubbish.

Not another town is there along the valley situated as is Monessen, and while it is one of the best towns, it is also the one where the business sections suffer most from the residence districts in times of flood and storm, from lack of proper sewerage.

A thirty six or forty-eight inch sewer along McKee avenue, with copious and proper openings and grade, would carry the bulk of water off and keep it from flooding the down town districts.

As it is, it has cost the tax payers more and private interests more already, to keep the debris cleared away, the streets respectable, and protect property, than the protective sewer on the hill would cost, regardless of what the size might be.

THE Standard Oil makes a specialty of keeping its explanation machiney well oiled and the hands of the judiciary well greased.

WOMEN do use so many unnecessary words. The wife of a Pennsylvania trainmaster testified in court that he was a prevaricator.

EVIDENT it is that councilmen in the smaller towns and some big ones too, are just beginning to realize what big corporations consider franchises worth, and what they will pay for privileges when forced to it. Mayor Guthrie recently asked the Pittsburg Railway Company fifty cents a lineal foot on all new track laid, a hundred dollar annual tax on each car operated is being considered and will be paid. The great trouble is, borough and city officials are and have been too easy with corporation agents when asking for rights and privileges, and it is high time they begin to learn what can be gotten for their town benefit, if they as public servants, are not too meeley mouthed and chicken hearted to ask. The good book says: "Ask and you will receive." Street car corporations and the like have the goods, and they are only too glad to deliver a goodly share for privileges they must have, and it is up to the city and borough councilmen to see that they ask for all there is to be gotten when a favorite franchise is asked for.

Ready for Engagements.

He Laughed Last.

A certain lady who wished to have some fun at the expense of an agent who had ofttimes solicited her to insure herself and family, asked him on one occasion if he would insure the cat. The agent, to the astonishment and no small amusement of some friends, promptly offered to do so, provided she paid the first premium down. The lady, still thinking to hoax him, expressed her willingness to do so, and placed a shilling on the table. The agent quickly produced a proposal, filled it in and obtained her signature while those present were on the tiptoe of expectancy as to what was to follow.

"Now, madam, with your permission, may I see the cat?"

"Certainly," she replied, at the same time pointing to a glass case which contained the stuffed remains of the poor defunct cat.

A chorus of derisive laughter burst from all present, but to their dismay the agent turned, bowed politely, at the same time picking up the shilling, and exclaimed:

"When that cat dies, madam, kindly call at our office and claim the insurance money. Good morning."—London Telegraph.

The First Stove.

The most important uses of fire were taught by fire itself. As the primitive man stood near the flames of the burning tree and felt their pleasant glow he learned that fire may add to bodily comfort, and when the flames swept through a forest and overtook a deer and baked it he learned that fire might be used to improve the quality of his food. The hint was not lost. He took a burning torch to his cave or hut and kindled him a fire on his floor of earth. His dwelling filled with smoke, but he could endure the discomfort for the sake of the fire's warmth and for the sake of the toothsomeness of the cooked meats. After a time a hole was made in the roof of the hut, and through this hole the smoke passed out. Here was the first stove. The primitive stove was the entire house, the floor was the fireplace and the hole in the roof was the chimney. The word "stove" originally meant "a heated room." So that if we should say that at first people lived in their stoves we would say that which is literally true. —St. Nicholas.

Practical Diagnostic Sign of Death.

Dr. Ott of Lillebonne (through Journal des sciences medicales de Lille) suggests the following practical and simple method of ascertaining whether or not life is present: The point selected is the forearm, which is quickly accessible, is free from hair and is easily exposed. The arm is extended horizontally from the body and the forearm pronated. If the test is made in the open air a cloak is held so as to shield the part from all motion of the atmosphere. The flame of a candle is now directly applied to a spot on the forearm, which is closely watched by the observer. At the end of a few seconds a swelling rapidly forms and bursts. If it contains air or gas the tissues are lifeless. If it contains liquid or exudation life is present.

"Man in the Street."

Emerson was not the first to use this phrase in his "Conduct of Life," which was published in 1860. In the first series of the "Greville Memoirs," under date March 22, 1830, occurs the following passage:

"Then will come the question of a dissolution, which one side affirms will take place directly, and the other that the king will not consent to it, knowing, as 'the man in the street' (as we call him at Newmarket) always does, the greatest secrets of kings and being the confidant of their most hidden thoughts."

It would appear from this that the expression was in common use among racing men in 1830.—Notes and Queries.

The Drama of the Sunset.

We never tire of the drama of sunset. I go forth each afternoon and look into the west a quarter of an hour before sunset with fresh curiosity to see what new picture will be painted there, what new phenomenon exhibited, what new dissolving views. Every day a new picture is painted and framed, held up for half an hour in such lights as the great artist chooses and then withdrawn and the curtain falls. The sun goes down, long the afterglow gives light, the damask curtains glow along the western window, the first star is lit, and I go home.—From Thoreau's "Winter."

In Short.

"Chumpleigh was down to the club last night and started telling us one of his long winded stories."

"About that horse of his, I suppose?"

"Yes, and we docked his tale."—Kansas City Drovers' Telegram.

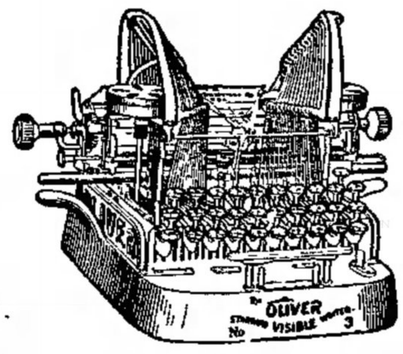
THIS TYPEWRITER DELIVERS THE GOODS

It's the Oliver—the Standard Visible Writer.

The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athletic stripped for a race



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing.

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity. It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke.

The OLIVER Typewriter

is a flawless piece of mechanism, combining the strength of tested steel with the perfect adjustment of the works of a watch. You can use an Oliver a life time and the type will not lose alignment.

It never suffers from nervous prostration; requires only a little oil and plenty of exercise to keep it at the highest point of efficiency.

The hum of Oliver Typewriters is heard in the most progressive business houses in the land. Sales increasing at a phenomenal rate. Get acquainted with the Oliver! Write for the Oliver book—we send it free with our compliments.

MARY'S INSANITY

By Louise Jackson Strong

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Well, Molly!" Mrs. Briggs kissed her daughter again tenderly. "I'm glad to get you back. It was unreasonable in your Uncle Page to keep you for months. I'll never spare you so long again."

"That isn't the only thing Uncle Page is unreasonable about," Mary replied, following her mother to the buggy.

Mrs. Briggs said nothing more until they were jogging along the pleasant road. Then she turned with a doubtful smile. "We may as well have it out and done with, Molly. Of course I know you mean that your uncle is unreasonable about that schoolteacher, but he's a good judge of men."

"He is too prejudiced to judge fairly," Mary declared. "And he prejudiced you against Allen too. If you only waited until you had become acquainted with him, mother"—

"I would never consent to your marrying a mere schoolteacher!" Mrs. Briggs broke in.

"Allen hasn't taken it up as a life profession," Mary hastened to explain. "Time he's pottered around at country school teaching a few years he'll be spoiled for anything else," Mrs. Briggs asserted, "and I can't have you tied to that kind of a man, dear."

Mary was silent, and her mother scrutinized her face, finding it thinner than it should be and pale, now the excitement of their meeting had passed. That made her anxious.

"You can't really have cared for him, Molly, so as to make you unhappy! You had never seen him until you went up there, and your father and I were two years, off and on, making up our minds."

"I think it is different with some," Mary said shyly, her cheeks pinking. "It seemed as if we had known each other always, from the first, and I saw him constantly, you know, till Uncle Page interfered. I care for him more than I can ever care for any one else, but I couldn't defy you, mother."

"I suppose he was angry over my letter?" Mrs. Briggs said tentatively.

"No, he wasn't angry, but he felt that you were unfair in not giving him a chance to show what was in him. He went away, as you had forbidden me to see him, and I have known nothing of him since," Mary said wistfully.

Mrs. Briggs felt a sudden contempt for the young man who had obeyed her mandates so completely without a struggle. However, it only proved him a poor thing, unworthy such a prize as Mary, and the dear girl was young. She would get over it and be happy in the love of some man who was a man. Such a one was at hand, and Mrs Briggs considered him so desirable as a son in law that she already regarded him as such prospectively.

"Well," she said finally, "I am glad, Molly, that you hold no grudge against me. I told you about the judge's nephew, a fine, smart young fellow. Mrs. Brown has a couple of girl cousins visiting her, and the Hendersons have several nice young men among the boarders. Our little town will be gay this summer, and I've fixed up a bit, so you can do your share of entertaining."

Mary shrank, exclaiming, "Oh, mother, I want to stay quietly at home with you!"

"And have people saying you're moping over a disappointment?" Mrs Briggs spluttered.

"I don't care what they say. It's no use, mother. I see what you mean for me, but I can't forget." Then, with a wan smile, "I am not behaving very well, mother, but don't mind it, and let's just go on as usual."

"And don't fling me at the judge's nephew," she added mentally.

"I have asked the nephew and Flora for this evening," Mrs. Briggs said presently, "but I can send John to tell them you are too tired."

"John, the new hand?" Mary commented absently.

"Yes, and he's a wonderful manager. There he is." Mrs. Briggs pointed with her whip as they rounded the home corner.

Mary glanced indifferently at the figure beyond the grove, then with a low cry leaned forward, gazing intently.

"John?" she repeated, turning a bewildered face to her astonished mother.

"Why, Molly! What is it?" Mrs. Briggs cried, somewhat alarmed.

The young man took off his hat and tossed back his hair with a peculiar gesture, and with a shriek Mary jerked up Dobbin, plunged out over the wheel, darted to the barbed wire fence, dropped flat, rolled smoothly under it and flew, still shrieking, across the meadow.

Paralyzed with dreadful fear, Mrs. Briggs gazed helplessly. There could be but one hideous explanation of the astounding scene—Mary was suddenly seized with mental derangement—she had taken that miserable affair to heart; she had brooded over her trouble; her whole expression showed that, and now, having it all brought up again—oh, horrible! It was her own mother who had—

"Oh, lordy, lordy!" Mrs. Briggs moaned, backing clumsily out of the buggy and fluttering along the fence like a hen at the garden pickets, but she could not roll her plump figure underneath. She would have to go around, and that poor child running headlong, perfectly wild. She was now disappearing in the grove. In her frenzy she would rush on down the hill beyond, and the creek was high.

"John! John!" Mrs. Briggs screamed frantically. "Catch her, John!"

John apparently understood and disappeared in the trees, while Mrs. Briggs, shaking with sobs, scrambled into the buggy and lashed Dobbin into a run with a suddenness that flung his heels to the top of the dashboard. She slid to her knees in the box and plied the whip, wailing aloud at every jump of the horse. At the pasture lane she turned so sharply that the buggy tilted against the post, nearly tipping her out, but she only urged the astonished Dobbin on, her imagination picturing her darling already at the bottom of the swirling stream. She dashed through the open gate of the potato field.

She could not wait to take down the bars of the small oat patch that intervened, but squeezed through and ran, panting breathlessly, too exhausted to call. Soon she caught sight of John. He had Mary safe. Her abused knees weakened at that, but she struggled to them. John clasped Mary close in his arms, and she was laughing shrilly, crying hysterically, "Oh, it is Allen; it is Allen!"

"Yes, honey; yes," Mrs. Briggs quavered. "Oh, lordy, lordy! Come to the house with mother, deary. Don't let go of her for your life, John. I've been wicked cruel to her— Yes, honey; yes; it's Allen."

"It's Allen, Allen!" Mary reiterated, her face on the young man's breast.

"Oh, lordy, lordy!" moaned Mrs. Briggs, the tears streaming. "Humor her, John. Help me get her to the house, then bring the doctors. Yes, ho-honey; it—it's Al-Allen."

"Mrs. Briggs"—John patted her shoulder comfortingly—"you needn't be frightened. Mary is all right. It is Allen—John Allen Smithers, instead of John Smith. I wanted to prove to you that I wasn't a mere good for nothing"—Mrs. Briggs sat down suddenly—"and I hope you have changed your opinion of me and will accept me as your son-in-law."

"For I'll never, never have anything to do with the judge's nephew!" Mary declared aggressively.

Mrs. Briggs started, then burst into peals of tearful, choking laughter. "I guess we'd better stop and see where we're at," she gasped. "I'm the only one that's crazy, it seems. Who wants you to have anything to do with the judge's nephew, missie? So, you young scamp, you're Allen, are you? And you've worked a slick game on me, but I'm suited. Why, it's the very thing I've been planning for weeks!"

Then, with fresh shrieks, Mary fell upon her mother, and they kissed and cried and laughed together, while John Allen looked on, grinning foolishly.

Noon as Nature's Dining Hour.

Persons who keep close watch on themselves are of the opinion that the hour of noon is the most critical period of life. At that time the human frame undergoes serious changes. The stomach has dispatched the morning meal and sends scouting parties in search of another. The eyes and brain are on the alert, and there is a sort of all goneness pervading the anatomy that sharpens the faculties and puts a new edge on the teeth. It is nature's dining time, and everything about the healthy man or woman is attuned to the demolition or enjoyment of what is called a "good square meal." Those who pay heed to the prompting of nature at this divine hour have their reward in good appetite, good temper and excellent digestion, which is conducive to all the good that flesh is heir to. But those who, following the imperious dictates of fashion, defer the hour of dining until all natural longings are dead and have to be resurrected by adventitious aids lay a train of evils and discomforts which sooner or later become the plague of their lives.—London Telegraph.

Blood Showers In Olden Times.

In the "Annals of Remarkable Happenings In Rome" mention is made of fourteen different showers of blood or blood and other substances mixed, which occurred between the years 319 A. D. and 1170. In 1222 we find record of a shower of blood and dust which covered the larger part of Italy. In 1226 a "snow" fell in Syria "which presently turned into large brooks and pools of blood." A monk who wrote in the year 1251 and whose manuscript is now preserved in the British museum, tells of a three days' shower of blood "all over southern Europe." Burgundy had a blood shower in 1361, and Dedfordshire, England, witnessed a similar phenomenon in the year 1450. In 1686 hailstones fell in Wurttemberg which contained cavities filled with blood or blood red liquid. The last "blood shower" on record occurred in Siam in the year 1802.

RENT PAYS FOR LAND.

Fertile Sections of the Southwest, Where Land Sells for $15 and Rents for $2 per Acre.

One of the remarkable things about Eastern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana is the fact that cleared land rents for $5 per acre cash, and can be bought for $7.50 to $15 per acre. It costs from $6 to $10 an acre to clear it. Other improvements necessary are slight and inexpensive.

The soil is rich alluvial, or made. It produces a bale of cotton per acre, worth $45 to $60. This accounts for its high rental value. Other crops, such as corn, small grains, grasses, vegetables and fruits, thrive as well.

Alfalfa yields 4 to 6 cuttings, a ton to a cutting, and brings $10 to $16 per ton.

In other sections of these states, and in Texas as well, the rolling or hill-land is especially adapted to stock raising and fruit growing. Land is very cheap, $5 to $10 per acre; improved farms $10, $15 to $25 per acre.

The new White River country offers many opportunities for settlers. High, rolling, fine water—it is naturally adapted to stock and fruit raising. Can be bought as low as $3 per acre.

See this great country for yourself and pick out a location. Descriptive literature, with maps, free on request.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

There is no need worring along in discomfort because of a disordered digestion. Get a bottle of KODAL FOR DYSPEPSIA, and see what it will do for you. The tar that is contained in Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is harmless. It is not coal tar, but is obtained from the pine trees of our own native forests. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is the best remedy for colds because it acts on the bowels- thus expelling all colds from the system. Bee's is the original Laxative Honey and Tar, and is best for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, lung and bronchial effections. Sold by C. A. Light.

You cannot induce a lower animal to eat heartily when not feeling well. A sick dog starves himself, and gets well. The stomach once overworked, must rest the same as your feet or eyes. You don't have to starve to rest your stomach. KODOL FOR DYSPEPSIA takes up the work of your stomach, digests what you eat and gives you rest. Puts it back in condition again. You can't feel good with a disordered stomach. Try Kodol. Sold by R. W. Beck.

A liquid cold cure for children that is pleasant, harmless and effective is Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. Superior to all other cough syrups or cold remedies because it acts on the bowels. An ideal remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough and all curable lung and bronchial effections in child or adult. Pleasant to take. Sold by C. A. Light.

Thousands annually bear witness to the efficiency of Early Risers. These pleasant, reliable little pills have long bore the reputation second to none as a laxative and cathartic. They are as staple as bread in millions of homes. Pleasant but effective. Will promptly relieve constipation without gripping. Sold by R. W. Beck.

The gums and resins obtained from pine trees have long been recognized as highly beneficial in the treatment of backache, kidney and bladder troubles. Pine-ules is the name of a new medicine, the principle ingredients of which come from the pine forests of our own native land. Sold by C. A. Light.

The sincerest tribute that can be paid to superiority is imitation. The many imitations of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve that are now before the public prove it the best. Ask for DeWitt's. Good for burns, scalds, chafed skin eczema, tetter, cuts, bruises, boils and piles. Highly recommended and reliable. Sold by R. W. Beck.

A hacking cough is most annoying. One Minute Cough Cure draws the inflamation out of the throat, chest and lungs. Sold by R. W. Beck.

BURIAL OF ANDY GIBA

Largest and Most Impressive Funeral Ever Held in Monessen.--21 Carriages.

The largest funeral in Monessen's history was that of Andrew Giba, of Wireton, held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. This young man had been ill only four days with appendicitis and died in Mercy hospital, where he was operated on. He was a brother of Michael Giba, the well known grocer of Wireton, and was one of the best known and most liked Slavish young men in this neighborhood.

He was fifteen years of age and was a favorite among teachers and pupils of the Monessen schools where he was a student of unusually bright and studious nature.

The funeral services were conducted in the Slavish Catholic church and were the most imposing and effective ever conducted in the town, the floral tributes being profuse and the young lady pall bearers being robed all in white, while the Slavish Coronet band headed the procession.

There were twenty-one carriages and it required an hour and a half to pass up Sixth street. Interment was made in Grandview cemetery.

They Were Not Wedded.

In Saturday's Independent was printed an announcement of the marriage of Miss Marie Braskie to Mr. Denny O'Rourke, and we later learn that the article was false and misleading and does injury to the young lady and gentleman. We used it as handed to us, but cheerfully make this explanation, and offer an apology on our part, as truly our intention was not to injure, or even to embarrass any one. Evidently the notice was written by one with the intent and purpose of injuring or annoying, and be it sportive or not, hereafter we wish nothing but verified facts sent into this office for publication.

A Handsome New Wagon.

John G. Staudemayer the popular ice cream man and baker recently added to his outfit a new and attractive delivery wagon which was purchased from B Armleder Co., of Cincinnati,O.

This vehicle is the finest appearing one of its kind in Monessen, being a good, practical and substantial build, while it is tastefully and attractively trimmed and lettered, and Mr. Staudemayer has just reason to feel proud, as well as gratified at having the best as well as the handsomest. Ormeleder company has the reputation of building and putting out high grade vehicles at very reasonable prices, and surely the one sent Mr. Staudemayer is a credit, and will do much towards making future sales.

A COAT OF ARMS.

How One May Be Acquired For a Consideration in England.

The practice of granting arms is still in vogue in England, Ireland, Scotland, Austria, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Germany, etc., and at times the pope, as sovereign pontiff, exercises the power.

Indeed, it is by patent or grant alone that a new family can legitimately acquire a coat of arms.

The modus operandi in England, for example, is as follows: The applicant for a patent of arms (from the crown) may employ any member he pleases of the heralds' college and through him present a memorial to the earl marshal of England, who acts for the crown in these matters, setting forth that he, the memorialist, is not entitled to arms or cannot prove his right to such and praying that his grace the earl marshal will issue his warrant to the kings of arms, authorizing them to grant and confirm to him due and proper armorial ensigns, to be borne according to the laws of heraldry by him and his descendants. This memorial is presented and a warrant is issued by the earl marshal, under which a patent of arms is made out, exhibiting a painting of the armorial ensigns granted, the royal arms of England, the arms of the earl marshal and those of the college and describing in official terms the proceedings that have taken place and a correct blazon of the arms. This patent is registered in the books of the heralds' college and receives the signatures of the garter and one or both of the provincial kings of arms.

A grant or patent of arms is made to a man and his male descendants. This gives him a fee simple of them—that is to say, to him and to his male descendants equally and altogether and to his female descendants in a qualified manner—i. e., for life, to bear the arms in a lozenge or impaled with their husbands' arms (if the husbands have arms), as arms can only be brought in by arms, or, if they be heiresses or coheiresses, on an escutcheon of pretense upon their husbands' shields, and in the last case their descendants inherit such maternal arms, but only as a quartering.—Nineteenth Century.

SMUGGLING.

It Was Considered a Legitimate Pursuit In Days Gone By.

A book by J. C. Wright entitled "In the Good Old Times" throws some interesting light on the ways of days gone by: "Of every three pounds of tea it was said that two were contraband. In fact, smuggling was considered a perfectly legitimate pursuit. Everybody was ready to profit by it, from the squire, who filled his cellars with cheap wine, and his wife, who adorned herself in cheap silks, to the shopkeeper, who got cheap groceries, or the laborer, who got high wages for work that was secret, unlawful and perilous. Even Adam Smith confessed to a weakness for smuggling and nobody was above bargaining to have a pipe or a hogshead put in his cellar at a low figure. But smuggling on a large scale was not carried on without bribery, perjury, informing, violence and murder."

Of the old time London watchman: "He was wrapped in a wide skirted heavy coat, a useful garment for protecting him from the cold, but not adapted to enable him to cope with the bullies who assaulted the weak and unprotected. He wore low shoes and a big broad brimmed hat, which could be turned up or down, worn forward or backward. The only means of defense which the watchman seems to have possessed was a staff something like a beadle's. In his left hand he carried his lantern."

In those primitive times pins were manufactured by hand and went through several stages of manufacture: Worker No. 1 formed the wire, No. 2 cut it into lengths, No. 3 smoothed it, the fourth man made the head, the fifth stuck it on, the sixth ground the point, the seventh washed and dried it, and it had to go through three more hands after that; hence it used to be a familiar proverb, "It takes ten men to make a pin."

Queer Judicial Decisions.

Some queer judicial decisions in Victoria are mentioned in the Australian Review of Reviews. A man who embezzled some money from a bank has received a sentence of nearly three years' imprisonment, while a man who murdered his mother by stabbing her to the heart received only one year, and another man, who shot his sister and killed her, was sentenced to only two years, and immediately after that a man who wrote a letter to another man threatening to kill him received three years' imprisonment.

Schoolboy Answers.

Here are some assertions from compositions by American schoolboys: "Franklin's father was a tallow chandelier." "The climate of North America is embracing." "This song is in the key of B flap." "There are five bowels—a, e, i, o and u." "The snow is painting the town white." "He lived in Cambridgeport." "Man is in the muscular gender because it denotes a male." "They went to the foolish (Polish) church." Question: "What is geography?" Answer: "Geography is round, like a ball."

Fame.

It is an indiscreet and troublesome ambition that cares so much about fame, about what the world says of us; to be always looking in the faces of others for approval; to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say; to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.—Longfellow.

Laws are like cobwebs—if any trifling or powerless thing falls into them they hold it fast, while if it is something weightier it breaks through them and is off.—Solon.

THE CHICKEN WASN'T GOOD.

Family Sickened By Eating Dinner of Fowl Supposed to be Tainted.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and little child living in one of the Rinehart flats, corner Schoonmaker avenue and Sixth street, had a narrow escape from death Monday, as a result of eating a Sunday meal of what the docter thought must have been tainted chicken.

The Sunday dinner was partaken of as usual, the meat served being a nice fat chicken, from all appearances in good and healthy condition. Nothing was thought or suspected until Monday, when Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and the little one became awfully sick—so sick that they were compelled to resort to their couches, not able to even call for assistance.

An hour or so later a neighbor girl thinking strange of the unusual quietness, entered the apartments and found all in bed, deathly sick, having thrown up as though an emitic had been taken, the substance being of a slimy green.

Dr Day was called and after learning the facts decided that the chicken had been in an unfit condition, and had caused the sickness.

He proceeded to treat the cases accordingly and the family is now out of danger and getting along as well as might be expected under the conditions.

The Maganetawan.

In its rivers as much as in its lakes lies the beauty of Muskoka. The Maganetawan is reached 171 miles north of Toronto, on the Grand Trunk Railway, and opens up another and entirely new region to Steamboat navigation, to the tourists and particularly to sportsman. The Maganetawan drains a surface of about 4,000 square miles. Some idea may therefore, be gathered of its magnitude and of the possibilities for canoeing opened up by the ramifications of the numerous tributaries and their connected lake enlargements. The very heart center for sport, for rod and gun. Its rivers and lakes can be ascended and descended in canoes, amid the best of sport, while the eye is facinated by the fresh and unsullied wildness of its forest haunts. For illustrated descriptive matter and all particulars apply to W. Robinson, 506 Park Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

Valuable Zones of Silence.

There has come into modern life a greater variety of sound and a greater volume than assailed the ears of our ancestors. To keep one's freshness there ought to be a zone of silence around every human being during some part of the day. The finest creative work is done, as a rule, in seclusion; not necessarily apart from men nor in solitary places, but away from the tumult and away from distracting sounds. There was organized in Paris years ago a society for the culture of silence. On the occasion of the initiation of a distinguished man of letters a bowl of water was brought out to him in a room where he was waiting in solitude. He studied it a moment, placed a rose upon it and sent it back. The water bore the rose without overflowing. To the members assembled in another room the act was the most convincing evidence that the initiate comprehended the purpose of the fellowship and was prepared in spirit to become one of the company. The act was a symbol which Americans may wisely study.—Good Health.

English Railways and Fogs.

It is seldom that there is a sufficiently heavy fog on an American railway to cause serious inconvenience that no special precautions are taken, but in England a heavy fog is so common that there is a regular service made up of the repair gangs, who take the place of the mechanical signals. Every distance signal is guarded by a signal man, who is supplied with flags and torpedoes, the latter being called detonators, while the signal men are pointsmen. Two torpedoes are placed on the track to warn the engineer when the signal is set at danger and are supplemented by a red lantern in the hands of the signal man. As the torpedoes cost a cent and a half each and are used in great numbers there is a machine supplied by which the second torpedo is forced from the rail by the force of the explosion of the first, as only one is necessary, the second being merely a precaution.

The Chow Dog.

The chow, the solemn, black tongued dog which comes from China, is, the London Chronicle thinks, the ideal city dog. It says: "He never barks unless there is something serious to bark at. You open the door, and the dog marches out with fine solemnity. This writer's chow has a range of about ten square miles, and he has never hurt a baby, though he has gathered innumerable friends during his solemn march through London. He never loses his head, and his morning walks embrace Chelsea, Putney and the sacred precincts of the Brompton oratory. Indeed, he once followed a bicycle to Hendon and found his way back within forty-eight hours with an honorably empty stomach. The unaccompanied chow is the very least of the nuisances of the London streets."

Artificial Honey.

The honey had some foreign substance in it—the leg of a bee and a shred of broken wing.

"Well," said the wife of the food expert, "this is pure at any rate." She held up the bits of bee on a fork before her husband. "No benzoic acid, formaldehyde, boric acid or salicylic acid here, eh, John?"

But John, the food expert, laughed scornfully. "Those bits of bee in the honey," he said, "prove its artificiality. Genuine honey never has dead bees in it. They who make genuine honey are too clean and careful for anything of that kind to happen. It is as rare to find in real honey a bee's wing or a bee's leg as it is to find in a loaf of bread a baker's hand or foot."

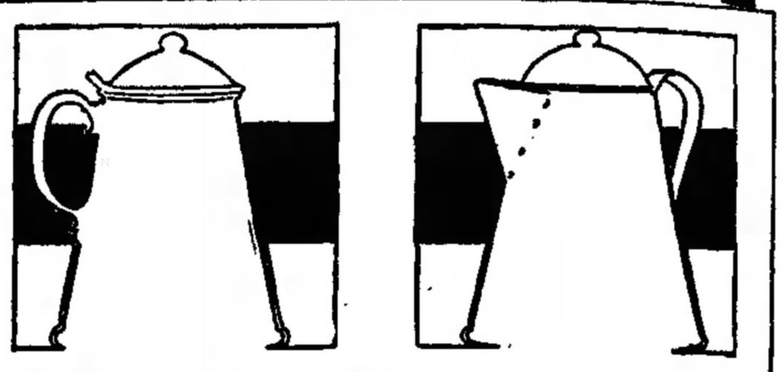
THE BEER STEIN VERSUS THE COFFEE POT



Theine and caffeine—the active alkaloidal principles of tea and coffee—are in no respect foods.

Acting as a temporary stimulant, their use is usually followed by a more or less depressing reaction dependent on one's physical condition.

The malt of pure beer has definite food-value, and imparts permanent tonicity to the entire human body.

Monessen Brewery Beer is rich in malt properties.

Its discriminating use in hot weather cools the blood and gratefully soothes and nourishes the nervous system.
